September 29 is a significant day in the Police calendar, it is the day when members of the Police Service and the public commemorate those officers who have made the ultimate sacrifice to protect their community.

The Police Ode

As the Sun surely Sets,

Dawn will see it arise,

For service above self,

Demand its own prize.

You have fought the good fight,

Life's race has been run,

And peace your reward,

For eternity begun.

And we that are left,

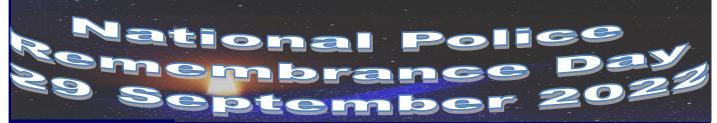

Shall never forget,

Rest in peace friend and colleague,

For the sun has now set.

We will remember.

We will remember them. Hasten the dawn.

Constable Sondra Lena was the first female police officer to be killed on duty in Queensland, and her beautiful smile has not been forgotten.

Just months short of her 21st birthday Constable Lena had been helping fellow officers on April 10, 1992 when she chose to do overtime at the end of her shift to help fellow officers search for an escapee from the Rockhampton Correctional Centre.

Constable Lena suffered a severe head injury and died in hospital after she had been struck by a vehicle that was passing through a road block on the Bruce Highway, at Etna Creek north of Rockhampton.

In tribute to Constable Lena's dedication and community spirit the city of Rockhampton has Sondra Lena Drive and Sondra Lena Memorial Park.

In September 2000 the Community Supporting Police's emergency welfare facility located in Yeppoon was named Sondra Lena Lodge, in recognition of Sondra's commitment to the QPS and the Central Region Community. Whilst the facility retained its name Sondra Lodge the original facility was closed and another found in Rockhampton (in 2007) which is closer to the Rockhampton

Hospital. (https://www.police.qld.gov.au/police-memorial)

Constable Wrembeck, from the Brisbane Traffic Branch, was riding his police Triumph motorcycle towards the city to complete his shift, when he observed a Ford Zephyr sedan failed to give a signal as it turned from Vulture Street into Grey Street. Constable Wrembeck stopped the Zephyr to speak to the driver and whilst Constable Wrembeck and the driver were standing at the rear of the car Constable Wrembeck moved slightly towards the centre of the road, and was struck by a Vanguard sedan heading towards the city.

The force of the impact threw Constable Wrembeck against the side of the Zephyr and onto its bonnet before he came to rest beside his motorcycle 27 feet from the point of impact. Constable Wrembeck, died at the nearby Mater Hospital on 16 August 1962 from his injuries.

Constable 1/c Gregory Olive from Kelvin Grove Police Station made a routine investigation for wilful damage of a property owned by Mr Fletcher following a complaint by Mr Fletcher about his neighbour, Piotr Michalewicz on the morning of 19 February 1962. Tensions between the two had been brewing for sometime, and on this particular occasion, Mr Fletcher claimed he had found Mr Michalewicz standing by the refrigerator and later said that he found a quantity of horse meat for his cat was missing. Constable Olive accompanied Fletcher home to inspect the damaged property from an incident which occurred on the 17 February.

Constable Olive visited Michalewicz's house, approximately 50 meters from the Kelvin Grove Police Station, to speak to him about the matter that same day. After knocking two or three times on the front door, the door flung open and Constable Olive was shot in the chest at close range by a .303 rifle, and staggered back from the door, collapsed and died a few minutes later. Michalewicz pleaded guilty, the jury agreed and Michalewicz was sentenced to life imprisonment for the wilful murder of Constable 1/c Gregory Olive. (https://www.police.qld.gov.au/police-memorial)

Each year, across Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Samoa and the Solomon Islands, officers, other staff and the community pause to reflect on those who have been lost in the line of duty as well as those through illness or other circumstances.

With Honour they served. We will remember them.

Constables George Doyle and Stephen Millard, and Aboriginal Tracker Sam Johnson staffed the lonely Lethbridge Pocket Police Station, their task to check the seemingly endless cattle duffing and horse stealing exploits of the locally based, gun-toting brothers, Patrick and James Kenniff. In mid-March 1902, a warrant was issued for the brothers' arrest, and Constable Doyle, Tracker Johnson together with local property manager Albert Dahlke made up one party searching for the men.

On Easter Sunday morning 30 March 1902, Constable Doyle and his men found the Kenniffs leaving an isolated pocket in the ranges. Within minutes Doyle and Dahlke were both dead, shot by the fugitives. Tracker Johnson, although chased by the killers, managed to escape, ride to Mitchell and raise the alarm.

The Kenniff brothers evaded capture for three months. The largest manhunt in Queensland history ended on 23 June 1902 when they surrendered after being surprised in a rough bush camp. Both brothers were sentenced to death for murdering Constable Doyle and Albert Dahlke. Patrick Kenniff was hung in Boggo Road Jail, Brisbane, on 12 January 1903 but his brother's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. (https://www.police.qld.gov.au/police-memorial)

Blue HOPE is unique as the case officers can build a rapport with the client immediately because of their own current or former experiences. There is no wasted time seeking clarification as to stories told, as inevitably we are able to identify exactly with the sometimes awful and cruel sights, smells and sounds as described by our clientele, things which make up the daily life of any Police Officer.

Thank you for your commitment & service Enjoy your retirement Jim.

Nationally renowned Search and Rescue (SAR) expert Senior Sergeant Jim Whitehead (pictured left), described as Australia's 'grandfather of SAR' (Search and Rescue), is turning 60 this year and retired from the QPS in July leaving an incredible legacy not just for the QPS, but for all of Australia.

Senior Sergeant Whitehead had been in the job for five years and had just been transferred to Rathdowney Police Station when an incident occurred that sparked an enduring passion for the field of SAR.

"Since commencing in this role, our SAR capability has increased in leaps and bounds" Senior Sergeant Whitehead reflected, Queensland is now acknowledged as leading Australia.

In 2006, Senior Sergeant Whitehead was offered his dream job, as State SAR Coordinator and Training Officer, which is a full-time role and was unique in Australia. Comprising of two parts: guiding the SAR system aimed at ensuring State SAR can respond to any call for assistance at any time, and a training component in which students experience three levels of training — Field Search Course, Diploma and Advanced Diploma.

Senior Sergeant Whitehead advised, "the guiding system is an incredibly robust system, able to handle multiple incidents simultaneously. During the 18 days of searching for missing people in the aftermath of the Grantham floods in 2011, we also seamlessly coordinated another 54 SAR incidents elsewhere in the state".

The training component has provided Senior Sergeant Whitehead the privilege of teaching students from New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands, Indonesia, Sri Lanka, Maldives, Seychelles and the United Arab Emirates, as well as interstate students on the National Police SAR Manager's Course in Canberra.

Following on from his work and training courses, in 2008 Senior Sergeant Whitehead was tasked to write a comprehensive supplementary manual on land search and rescue.

In 2012, Senior Sergeant Whitehead was honoured with an award from the National Police Search and Rescue Manager's Course (NPSARMC) in Canberra to recognise his outstanding service and dedication to SAR nationally. In presenting the award, then-Director of the NPSARMC, Inspector Brian Edmonds of Tasmania Police, described him as the 'grandfather of SAR' and the 'font of knowledge of all things SAR related.

In 2016 Senior Sergeant Whitehead undertook the task of merging the two manuals into one, which now forms the basis for all SAR training and operations throughout the country. The National Search and Rescue Manual is one of only three such manuals worldwide and was formally adopted by Australia in October 2019.

Senior Sergeant Whitehead received the QPS Meritorious Service Medal for services to SAR and in the 2022 Australia Day Honour's List, he was recognised with an Australian Police Medal (APM). Senior Sergeant Whitehead's APM was acknowledged in the 2022 Winter Edition of the CSP newsletter. Senior Sergeant Whitehead delivered an interesting presentation about the work done by the SAR to the attendees of the 2021 CSP Annual General Meeting.

Senior Sergeant Whitehead said, "his policing career had been incredibly rewarding and encouraged anyone looking for meaning and purpose in their careers to consider joining the QPS".

"Policing is the greatest job in the world, with so many paths to follow. "I had no idea at the beginning where my policing career would lead me, but I found my niche in search and rescue."

Senior Sergeant Whitehead's journey from novice to renowned expert in his chosen field demonstrates that great police officers are not born, they're made. Senior Sergeant Whitehead's knowledge and experience has seen him become the first port of call for reviewing Coronial SAR incidents across Australia, he will continue this role in his retirement.

THE POLICE DOG

He was born on a Winter's night, in a fluffy bundle of eight He fought for every mouthful in that crowded crate Never still for an instant, even in the morning chill Dark, glittering eyes, and an indomitable will.

If it moved, he would chase it, but he never ran away
He'd fight and bite and wrestle every minute of every day
He ruled the other pups, even his bigger brothers
Smarter, quicker and fiercer, than all the others.

He soon left the litter for a life in the job
The nemesis of those who would kill, hurt or rob
He was matched with his master, his hero in blue
A partnership that is ancient, love, pure and true

They ran through the streets, the bush and through the night Tracking endless kilometres, until they had the crook in sight He never let his master down and he always had his back Fearless, staunch and loyal to his leader of the pack.

He'd lie by his master's side, as he watched TV
Watching every move he made, no concept of "me"
The joy from his kindness and a scratch behind his ear
He loved him and protected him year after year.

His master's mates would play with him, for he loved them too They were part of his master's pack, this mighty pack in blue He somehow knew who he could, and who he couldn't trust He was 40kgs of righteousness, fighting for what is just.

He was starting to slow, it was harder to get out of his van He was struggling at work, trying to keep up with his man The joy was still there, but his hips and legs were aching He wasn't getting the job done, and his big heart was breaking He cried as his master left the house alone
He tried to understand why he had left him at home
He fretted as the hours dragged so slowly by
His master finally returned and he couldn't ask him why?

He lay with his dog as he cuddled him through the night
His boy was getting sicker now, he'd fought his last fight
He gave him his favourite treats, before he carried him out the door
His final journey in his beloved van, this hero of the law.

He thought of all the battles won, his beautiful dog by his side
Lying in the front seat with him today, on this, his final ride
Unflinching devotion, a friendship so rare
The tears started to flow, he'd never felt such despair.

He lay on the vet's table, as his master whispered in his ear
He seemed to know it was his time, he tried to take away his master's fear
They looked into each other eyes, and his master cried
And in that lonely room, another hero died.

Congratulations QPS Dog Squad Happy 50th Anniversary

The Queensland Police Service Dog Squad celebrated a "paw-some milestone of the canine unit's 50th anniversary in July". https://australianseniorsnews.com.au/featured/queensland-police-dog-squads-paw-fect-50th-birthday

During July, members of various Dog Squads from across Australian and New Zealand participated in a Tracking and Capability Workshop hosted by the Brisbane Dog Squad as part of their 50th Anniversary celebrations.

The challenges faced by teams representing New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Western Australia, New Zealand, and Queensland competed in a variety of tracking and cognitive decision-making scenarios, comparing the various methodologies of high-level tracking teams and decision making activities whilst operating under stress.

The skills tested during this 4 day event will help form a framework for future skills enhancement training in the led up to the 2032 Brisbane Olympics. (Queensland Police Union Journal Winter 2022 pg 143).

With all the training and competition behind them the Queensland Dog Squad hosted a function at Suncorp Stadium for all participants, past and present QPS dog handlers, representatives of Australian and New Zealand law enforcement dog agencies, and the family of dog handler Senior Constable Norm Watt, who was tragically killed on duty by a gunman on July 21, 2000.

Minister for Police Hon. Mark Ryan and Retired Commissioner Bob Atkinson joined in the celebrations on Thursday 21 July to acknowledge the significant impact the Dog Squad has made on policing in Queensland over the past 50 years and to recognise "the extraordinary teamwork performed day and night by these dedicated QPS members and the immense community interest and support for our police dogs and handlers." Minister Ryan said.

The event was also attended by one of the first QPS Dog Squad handlers, former Constable First Class Charlie Degnan. Charlie, was among the speakers to address the attendees at the function and reflected on the humble beginning of the QPS Dog Squad, which was established in December 1972, after he, and fellow officer David Laird and their German Shepherds Lobo and Rolf participated in a guard dog training course at the Royal Australian Air Force base in Toowoomba.

Since then, 472 police dogs have served the community, handled by 179 police dog handlers, with the QPS Dog Squad providing frontline operational support in all major residential areas in Queensland.

The QPS Dog Squad currently comprises 68 General Purpose teams, 14 specialist Detection Dog teams, six Firearm and Explosive Detection Dog teams, and one Special Emergency Response Dog Team, and now operates in every policing region throughout the state of Queensland," the Minister said.

The 50th Anniversary Function was an opportunity for Minister Ryan to present the annual Norm Watt Award and the Ian Jamieson Award, both of which acknowledge achievements in core duties or improvements in capability or training.

It was noted the Dog Squad had become an integral part of front-line service delivery to the community of Queensland. "Dogs provide a unique support service in their ability to detect drugs, firearms, cash, explosives, blood, human remains and electronic storage devices, as well as general policing duties".

The relationship between police dogs and their handlers is legendary, with dogs becoming valued family members, and remaining so after their retirement.

Thanks to their innate skills, enthusiasm for working and unwavering loyalty to their handlers, the Dog Squad has gone from strength to strength since its humble beginnings in 1972.

Handler's dream comes true

"Police dog handling isn't just a job, it's a lifestyle, a contract that you and your family enter into, to train and care for a police dog on a 24-hour basis."

Ipswich Dog Squad Officer in Charge Steve Lindsey, has worked with the Dog Squad in various areas of the State during his 21 years Service and, said "I'm always pinching myself, they always say if you find something you love you never work a day in your life and it's been a great career, I've loved every moment".

Recently returning to Ipswich, with his partner PD Leo, OIC Lindsey, said "Whilst our time with these dogs is only brief, the bond created through the sharing of experience as a dog handler team serving Queensland is tangible and a bond or trust that cannot be broken."

OIC Lindsey, reflected of the 50th Anniversary saying the Ipswich Dog Squad was established in 1986, and currently has four general purpose dogs and one trained in cannabis detection, the

Squad "would continue to grow" to accommodate for the city's projected growth rate and "the fact that high-quality dogs brought results". The Dog Squad's primary role is to support the frontline police within the district, mainly by tracking offenders decamping from police or at the scene of a crime or serious incident

OIC Lindsey said "It's a bit cliche but they speak about the bond between a man and a dog but unless you've worked with that dog everyday you don't truly understand what that bond means, it's very strong."

The job is a dream come true for OIC Lindsey, who has wanted to be a dog handler all his life.
